Note, it is possible to select a size that does not match the aspect ratio for the photo you have chosen. If this occurs, you will see crop marks surrounding the photo. The part of the photo that resides within the crop marks is what will be printed. Anything outside of the crop marks will not be printed.

The example in the next screen print illustrates crop marks surrounding the photo. In the example, size 4x6 was chosen; however this photo is formatted for 4x5 aspect ratio. Your choices are as follows:

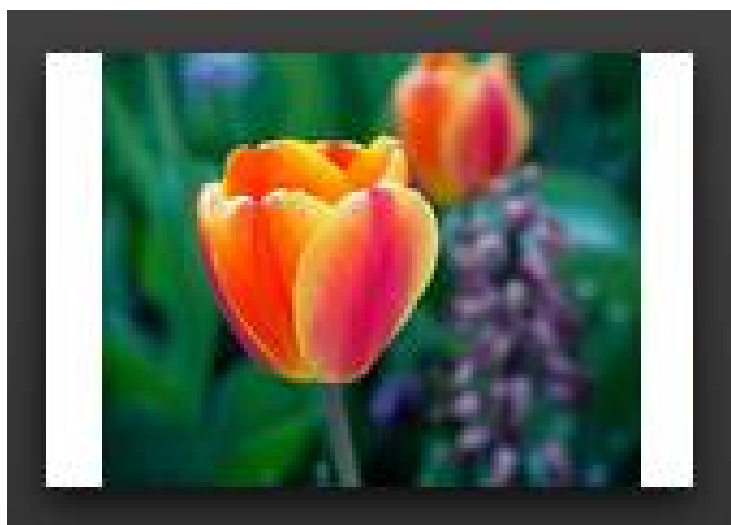

Option 1: Crop the photo to fit your selected 4x6 size. Note, you can adjust the crop marks at checkout if you are not happy with what has been selected by default.

Option 2: Select None for no cropping at checkout if cropping would not work. For example, cropping may not be an option for a family portrait, as you don't want Uncle Ned to be cropped out of the photo! Selecting None at checkout will create a white border to meet the selected size requirement. However, none of the photo will be lost. You can later trim the print when you receive it, or you can cover the white borders with a mat.

Option 3: You can simply choose a different size that meets the proper aspect ratio requirement for the photo (e.g. 4x5, 8x10, 16x20, etc.)
